Rapid-Fire Presentations: The Rapid-Fire Presentation format is an exciting oral presentation style. You have three-five minutes to present your paper (no longer than five minutes), followed by two minutes for Q&A. Irrespective of how complex your research, you can do this in the allotted time.

When creating a five-minute presentation, plan to present a slide per minute. The five slides, in order, include a Title/Author/Affiliation slide, an Outline slide, a Problem Description/Motivation slide, a Proposed Approach/Alternative slide, and a Summary/Conclusion slide. The title slide names your presentation.
